

Dear Friend,

The Miami Valley has a proud tradition as an international locus for peace. Recognizing this, I initiated a new genre of cinema in 2007: the Peace Film... and the distinctive ScreenPeace public film series was born!

ScreenPeace 2009 will again offer 35mm prints of famous and favorite major motion pictures on the big screen afternoons at the Little Art Theatre in Yellow Springs and evenings at The Neon Movies in downtown Dayton:

- Sunday 04 October: CRY FREEDOM
- Sunday 11 October: EMERALD FOREST
- Sunday 18 October: DAVID AND FATIMA
- Sunday 25 October: TO END ALL WARS
- Sunday 01 November: HAIR

AND for the second year, Sunday 08 November: *ScreenPeace Student Film/Video Contest winners

All revenues from ScreenPeace support our region's celebrated 501(c)3 nonprofit Dayton International Peace Museum. Located in the historic Pollack House in downtown Dayton, the DIPM displays permanent and traveling exhibits, houses a library and research center, and includes both a Children's Room and a Dayton Room. The museum delivers conflict resolution and peace education programs for public and private schools, and features special educational, artistic, environmental, relational, and spiritual events on the many ways to effect peace.

ScreenPeace is a true community endeavor. Though our costs continue to increase, we have held the price on advertising opportunities to permit everyone to continue to participate. Details are contained on the back of this letter; your support for this meaningful (and entertaining!) project is vital. You can help inspire a culture of peace by being an integral part of ScreenPeace 2009.
